Debate on Albany's future

By Anne Sutton

ALBANY — Of Albany's 1,049 acres of dry land, 435 acres are residential, populated mostly by small single family dwellings.

Residents like their "city of homes" pretty much the way it is. At least that was the impression brought from last week's public debate on the town's future.

More than 20 residents attended the second of three public hearings on the general plan update to hear officials discuss land use alternatives.

"The California Environmental Quality Act and the state general plan guidelines tell us to have a variety of alternatives," said consultant Lisa Newman at the Jan. 31 meeting.

"They show population, scale, location and the types of development that can occur under different assumptions of change and growth."

Four alternatives were drafted by Newman Planning Associates, hired by the city to work with staff on the general plan:

- A "conservation" approach restricts building and commercial expansion while allowing for more parks and open space.
- A "current trends" alternative figures on growth maintained at present rates.
- A "residential" emphasis favors increased housing
- And the "commercial" emphasis encourages business.

"These alternatives are not mutually exclusive," Newman

As unseasonably cold weather gripped the East Bay last week, travelers along The Arlington were forced to navigate through a thick blanket of fog that hung so low it touched the pavement

East Bay gets a taste of some real winter weather

A low-pressure system swirled in from Alaska last week causing temperatures to plunge into the low-30s and dusting snow on Bay Area hilltops.

Public agencies were busy Saturday morning responding to reports of water pipes bursting or frozen because of frigid overnight temperatures.

A spokesman for the East Bay Municipal Utility District said EBMUD's telephone lines were flooded with calls from people who woke up to find their water pipes had frozen.

Gayle Montgomery said several homeowners in the district reported plastic irrigation pipes bursting because of the low temperatures.

There also were a few water main breaks, according to Montgomery, but he said they probably were not related to the cold weather.

As the cold snap continued, EBMUD advised anxious callers to wrap exposed pipe with newspaper, blankets or other insulating material.

The frigid temperatures on Feb. 6 set a 50-year record for Oakland and Alameda.

Supervisors approve Kensington doctor's two-story expansion

By Mandy Erickson

KENSINGTON — Residents who live near the Arlington business district lost a battle in their continuing fight against development last week when Contra Costa County voted to allow an office addition.

The county board of supervisors voted 5 to 0 at last Tuesday's meeting to allow Dr. Lawrence Thal to continue with his plans to build a two-story storage area once the retaining wall behind his property is fixed.

Thal already had begun adding on to his optometry office when the county ordered him to stop construction in December.

Residents had complained that Thal may have illegally avoided community hearings and parking requirements. The board had ordered work stopped until Thal proved that he followed correct procedures.

"I think this clearly states that none of these charges are true," Thal said of the board's decision.

"I'm pleased that it is a moot issue."

Many residents oppose any development in the Arlington business district. They say that they moved to Kensington because they wanted to escape the congestion and traffic in more urban areas.

"The business district is clogging up my street with automobiles," said Greg Mulligan, who lives around the corner from the optometrist's office.

Thal said "it's a fact of life" that residents who live near a business district will see construction near their homes.

When Thal began construction in November, residents charged that he had dropped his plans to build in 1983, then restarted them in 1988 without reapplying. Thal said he continued to work on his plans during the five year span.

As long as building plans remain active, builders do not need to request extensions or reapply for permits.

Residents also asked the county to require that Thal install six additional parking spaces. The county requires that five parking spaces be added for each doctor who works in an office, and one space be added when a significant amount of office space is built.

Mulligan, who spoke at the meeting, alleged that Thal had hired an additional optometrist without informing the county. Thal said he and another doctor both work part time, so only one doctor is seeing patients at a time.

Thal agreed to build only two stories instead of three, as he had originally planned. The county then did not require him to install a parking space.

County Supervisor Tom Powers, who represents Kensington, said he felt Thal and his neighbors had reached a compromise.

Expect to pay more for recreation in El Cerrito

By Nancy Boas

EL CERRITO — The City Council unanimously approved a 5 percent fee increase for all 1989 summer recreation programs. The increase is expected to produce an additional $32,244 for the city's general fund.

Community Services Director Joel Witherell, who recommended the fee hike, said the 5 percent figure is based primarily on the cost of living increase.

Al Miller, vice chairman of the Parks and Recreation Commission, argued against the proposal at Monday's City Council meeting.

"Some of us feel that we are now pricing our facilities and services out of the market."

Miller told the council that the 10 percent fee increase adopted last year drove some organizations out of the community center.

"But it is difficult to say how many have left because they do not come back to tell you that they have left," he said.

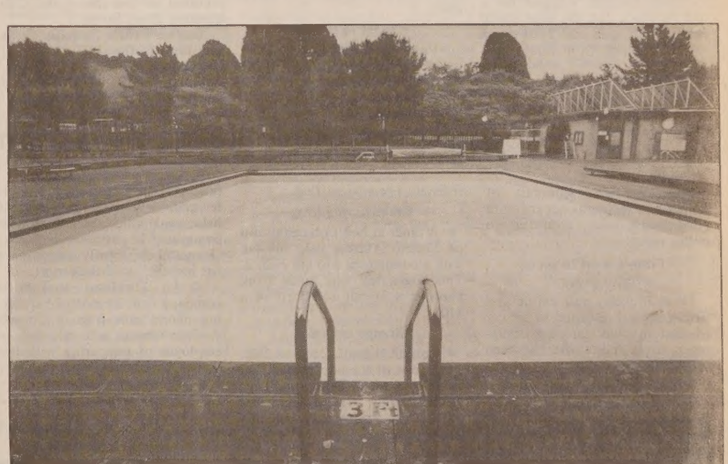

Also, the Parks and Recreation Department was given no summary figures showing the shortfalls of that increase, Miller said.

Ten years ago, the Community Services Department staff and the Park and Recreation Commission adopted a policy for a self-supporting program. The program currently is nearly 89 percent self-sufficient.

Witherell told the council that the rate increase for 1989-1990 will help the commission become 100 percent self-sufficient.

The council rejected the Community Services Department's request that the director raise fees annually according to cost-of-living standards.

"Resolutions such as this would take the power out of the City Council's hands," said Councilmember W. Mae Ritz.

It will cost El Cerrito $115,000 to fix its 25-year-old community pool

Repairs needed for cracked pool

By Charles Gallardo

Though the city has pumped more than $100,000 into it, El Cerrito's 25-year-old pool is cracked, leaking and badly in need of a complete renovation.

"(It's) a serious problem that we will need to resolve," said Joel C. Witherell, director of El Cerrito's community services.

Officials estimate it will cost $115,000 to fix the cracks, resurface the deck area, install new tile and replace the pool heater.

"It's an old pool. It's got aches and pains," Witherell said. "It's the kind of facility that's highly prized by the community, but it does have a lot of costs associated with it."

Instead of dipping into the city's over-burdened general fund, however, officials may take advantage of El Cerrito's share of the recently-acquired Measure AA money.

More than $660,000 is available for El Cerrito. Voters in Contra Costa and Alameda counties approved the $225 million park bond measure last November.

Seventy-five percent of the money went to regional parks and 25 percent was split among cities in both counties to pay for improving parks and recreational facilities.

Witherell said the city hasn't yet determined if park bond measure money will be used for fixing the pool. Witherell's Measure AA "shopping list" already exceeds $3 million.

The City Council is expected to decide in May which projects will take priority.

The pool's demand for nonstop maintenance is putting a constant drain on finances.

In 1978, fissures from the moving earth forced the city to spend $35,000 for a new fiberglass liner. Plumbing repairs cost another $30,000, and lighting an additional $10,000, said Witherell.

"Pools do crack and they do leak water," he said. "The pumps go 24 hours a day. It's very complicated. It's nothing (like) watering a baseball field."

The city's parks also are overdue for renovation and repair, according to a city staff report.

The October report listed possible projects, including rehabilitating and landscaping the Community Center, making parks handicap-accessible, relighting parks and resurfacing the city's 17 tennis courts.

Also considered is a second senior center, expected to cost $600,000.

Thieves nab shrimp, crab at Asian restaurant

Following is a summary of crimes and incidents reported to the El Cerrito police last week.

Asian restaurant burglaries

• Yusan's Sushi restaurant reported that burglars kicked in the back door Jan. 26 and made off with a microwave oven, a stereo, $500 worth of shrimp, $200 worth of meat, crab, and Sapporo beer.

On Jan. 31, someone broke into a Thai restaurant and stole $100 in cash, a television and a microwave oven.

Traffic check nets shoplifters

•Two suspects stopped for a traffic check Jan. 28 were found with a billy club and $120 worth of men's shirts from Emporium-Capwell.

A department store spokesman said one of the suspects entered the store about 10 times and stole the clothing.

Thefts

•A Lucky shopper had her purse snatched from a shopping cart while she was loading groceries into her car Jan. 29. The thief got away with $10 in cash and an $80 purse.

Food Bowl theft

•Employees at the Food Bowl placed a shoplifter under citizen's arrest Jan. 29 after he attempted to steal curl activator by concealing it under his clothing.

•The Wherehouse reported that a suspect ran out of the record store with six compact discs.

Caught in the act

•Police arrested a cat burglar caught by a startled homeowner Jan. 30. The burglar was responsible for breaking into at least two homes while the residents were sleeping and taking a cigarette lighter, camera and walkman.

No deposit, no return

•A 28-year-old woman was arrested Jan. 25 for attempting to return two $32 Liz Claiborne wallets stolen from Emporium-Capwell.

Fish mutilation

•Employees at a church nursery school reported that 10 of their zebra fish and one catfish were cut in half Jan. 30.

Cars in jeopardy

•On the night of Jan. 21, smashed vehicle windows were reported for two cars in the 7200 block of Blake Street.

Another car's window was smashed in the 1600 block of Everett near Blake.

Similar reports were filed for a car in the 1000 block of Navallier and another in the 1100 block of Navellier.

The following night a smashed window report was made for a car in the 6700 block of Cutting Boulevard.

•A 1977 Toyota valued at $3,000 was stolen from the 2200 block of Humboldt Avenue Jan. 22.

•On Jan. 23 a moped parked in front of a house on the 8600 block of Don Carol was stolen.

•The same night, a thief removed personalized license plates from a vehicle on Club View Drive.

•On Jan. 23, someone smashed the rear window of a car in an apartment complex in the 1700 block of Liberty. When confronted by the owner, the thief fled, but not without the car's $200 stereo.

Shy dog angers Masonic Avenue homeowner

Following is a summary of crimes and incidents occurring in Albany last week, according to police reports:

"I don't want to spend a lot of money"

● A Berkeley man eating at a Sizzler Feb. 3 returned to his car to find that his camping equipment, tools and a rifle had been stolen.

Sorry, window's closed

● Golden Gate Fields security reported Feb. 3 that a man was creating a disturbance at one of the cashiers' windows. The man told police he was owed some money and that he needed an insulin shot for diabetes. He was given first aid.

Maximum wages

● A woman posing as a job seeker at Casper's Hot Dogs on San Pablo Avenue "simulated a weapon" and demanded money from the cash register.

The cashier managed to retrieve the money and return it to the register. The suspect fled.

Creative financing

● A diner at Nat Pob restaurant on Solano Avenue paid his tab with a counterfeit $10 bill Feb. 2. The bogus bill was made from parts of a $1 bill and parts of a $10.

Strange behavior

● Cornell School reported Feb. 3 that one of its aides was acting strange all week. School officials unsuccessfully tried to detain the woman last Friday until her husband could pick her up. The principal followed her home, where she locked herself in the house and cranked up some music. Her husband told police his wife is suffering from emotional problems and is seeing a psychiatrist.

● A Ventura Avenue woman Feb. 3 called police, again claiming her upstairs neighbors have been entering her home, stealing things and performing crude acts.

According to police, the calls are ongoing and the woman is delusional. Neither she nor her husband, who refuses to intervene, will seek professional help, said police. She cannot be committed because she is "neat, clean and apparently able to care for herself," said the report.

● An Oakland locksmith company Feb. 2 reported harrassing phone calls from a Cornell Avenue woman who accused an employee of tampering with her locks, thereby making a burglary possible. She said she would get the employee's name and have a restraining order issued. Police advised the company not to give out any names at that time.

● A renter on Pierce Street reported Feb. 1 that his landlady, who served him an eviction notice in late December, was threatening him to get him to leave.

Alameda County m outlaw assault rifle

Bay City News

Alameda County Supervisor Don Perata, law enforcement officials and clergy announced the formation of a citizens' coalition to outlaw assault weapons and support legislation instituting such a ban.

At a news conference at the Oakland International Airport last week Perata said he and other local officials have been looking into ways of eliminating assault weapons for more than a year. Their efforts were supported by the recent slaughter of five Stockton school children at the hands of Patrick Purdy, who used an assault rifle.

"The use and easy access of these weapons can no longer be tolerated," Perata said.

The citizens' group was formed to counter the anticipated onslaught of intimidation by the gun lobby, which Perata expects to oppose strongly the pending legislation that would ban assault weapons.

"We will be in an entrenched, pitched battle with the National Rifle Associaton," he said.

"We will ask every city council, board of superivsors and school board to endorse the legislation and will keep a daily score card of legislators' positions on it," he said.

"This is a drop dead issue — if a legislator isn't with us on this then nothing else matters."

Bill Eastman, Pleasanton Police Chief and head of the California Police Chiefs Association, called assault guns "weapons of war that are designed for one thing, to kill people in war."

"They are not necessary in the hands of an ordered society."

Eastman aimed his remarks at gun advocates who say the right to bear arms is a constitutional right. "This is not an issue of constitutional right — it's clearly an issue of right and wrong."

Eastman criticized the state legislature for being slow to ban assault weapons, stating that if police officers carri weapons there would be a cry and the legislature wo the police from having th

Child sex arrests

Richmond police say two men have been arrested for allegedly running business with a prostitution ring that exploited a 9-year-old boy and a 12-year-old girl.

Lt. Raymond Howard said Richmond residents Paul Wesolowski, 34, and Jessie Porter, 31, were arrested last week and charged with perform- lewd and lascivious acts against minors.

The two ellegedly frequented the prostitution ring, which police believe operated out of the Richmond home of the children's mother.

The mother, 28-year-old Catherine Hubert, was arrested and charged with selling the children for sex and furnishing them with drugs.

She was scheduled to enter a plea at the Bay Municipal Court Dept. 2 but could not appear because of illness.

Arrested on similar charges was the children's grandmother, Glenda Phillips, 49, of Concord.

Both Hubert and Phillips are scheduled to appear in Department 2 of the court at 1:30 p.m. Feb. 17.

Paperboy killed

A man who fatally shot a newspaper carrier who came to his door to collect said he was just winding up a cocaine binge.

Henry Bookout, 25, shot 13-year-old Salvador Roberts in the chest shortly after 6 p.m. Friday when he thought the boy was prowling outside a trailer at Gerken's Mobile Home Park at 2425 Church Lane, San Pablo.

The trailer is owned by Howard Murphy, Jr., the husband of Bookout's mother.

San Pablo Police Chief David Sylstra said Bookout had just ended a crack cocaine binge which began Thursday when he shot the youth, said a spokeswoman.

Sylstra reportedly said Bookout used his entire welfare check to purchase $160 worth of the drug in North Richmond and used it all.

His mother, Kathleen Murphy, was in the trailer at the time of the shooting and knew of her son's cocaine use, according to the spokeswoman.

Drug raid

Richmond police report more than 100 officers from various law enforcement agencies in the East Bay arrested 80 suspects in a major drug sweep of a Richmond apartment complex.

A police spokesman said the Kennedy Manor Aartment Complex at 680 S. 37th St. was a known drug haven and had been under surveillance for several weeks.

Police began the raid about 7 p.m. Saturday and are continuing foot patrols and increased enforcement.

Prior to the police action, Richmond police had obtained search warrants for eight residences and arrest warrants for 23 suspects.

Police arrested six major suspected rug dealers, including two who had half-million-dollar warrants out for their arrest. Charles Kenneth Collins, 35, and Leon Wilson, 24, were charged with multiple counts of narcotics sales.

Other arrests ranged from possession of weapons and narcotics to minor and major traffic violations.

County officials plan 400-mile bay bike trail

Journal staff report

Scores dozens of local cities and agencies approve, the Bay Area should have a continuous trail hugging 400 miles of shoreline.

The Association of Bay Area Governments and State Sen. Bill Lockyer (D-Hayward) last week unveiled an ambitious plan to achieve a bicycle trail from the Marin bay near Milpitas to north of Vallejo.

The estimated $25 million stretch of asphalt would connect existing bicycle and jogging trails throughout the nine affected counties.

"The bay is our major scenic and recreational resource," said Albany Mayor Ed McManus, chairman of the Bay Trail Advisory Committee. "Until now, unfortunately, there has never been a coordinated approach to enjoying the bay and getting around it by foot and bicycle."

Lockyer, who sponsored the year-old legislation, and ABAG, which drafted the plan, are trying to persuade some 36 affected cities to support the trail.

"We have been working with more than 100 representatives from local agencies," said Susan Phillips, ABAG's trail project manager.

ABAG will assist the various involved cities with funding ideas and help locating grants.

Funding is expected to come from a state park and recreation bond measure voters approved last year, from California Coastal Conservancy grand money and from the East Bay Regional Park District's $225 million park bond measure.

About 270 miles of the trail will need paving or construction, said Phillips. Depending on the landscape, the cost could reach $33 million.

Individual cities now will begin the slow process of holding public hearings to determine how and if to proceed with their area's part of the proposal.

Lockyer also announced that he is authoring a second bill that will force Caltrans to provide pedestrian and bicycle passage on bay region bridges when they conduct bridge improvements and expansions.

Trails on the bridge right now account for about 40 percent of the entire plan, Lockyer said. ABAG officials hope the entire trail system will be complete within a decade.

Nearly 600 votes didn't count Nov. 8

Bay City News

A Contra Costa County grand jury issued a report Tuesday concluding that 569 county voters were disenfranchised in the Nov. 8 election because their absentee ballots were delivered to election offices too late to be counted.

According to the report, 569 absentee ballots postmarked between Nov. 3 and Nov. 7 did not arrive at the county election office in Martinez until Nov. 9.

State election law forbids counting ballots received after the polls close on election day, according to Contra Costa County Acting Registrar of Voters Robert Delevati.

The grand jury report complimented the county elections department on its handling of the 1988 general election. It blamed the U.S. Postal Service not only for the late arrival of completed ballots but also for reported delays in the delivery of sample and absentee ballot forms to voters.

Delevati said some absentee ballots took as long as five days to travel to election department offices from Concord.

Dan DeMiglio, a spokesman for the Postal Service, blasted the grand jury for issuing an "indictment" of the service without giving representatives a chance to examine the late ballots and answer the charges.

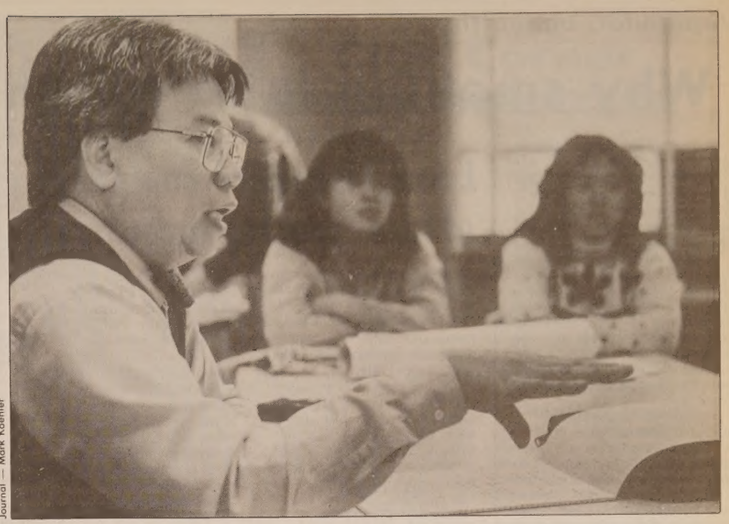

"Not one postal person has been contacted," he said.

Nancy Walters, manager of commercial accounts for the Oakland division of the post office, said she will meet with Delevati to look over the postmarks on disqualified ballots and determine what might have caused the delays.

Walters said she has not seen the grand jury report and can't comment on its specific conclusions. But she said first class letters mailed in Contra Costa County should reach destinations within the county the following day.

Absentee ballots mailed and postmarked by voters traveling in other states obviously would take longer to reach the county election office, Walters said.

Members of the grand jury could not be reached for details on the locations where the 569 disqualified ballots were postmarked.

Students help ease the pain

Albany youths help raise funds for schoolyard victims' families

By Ken Epstein

The shooting in the Stockton school yard lasted only a few minutes. Five child victims were soon buried.

But for some East Bay students the pain inflicted at Cleveland Elementary School will not easily be forgotten.

Members of high school Asian clubs — from Albany, El Cerrito, Skyline, Fremont, Oakland Tech, Berkeley, — have joined together to raise money to help the Southeast Asians who lost their children.

Representatives from schools met at Berkeley High last week to plan fund raising activities and discuss the significance of the Stockton events.

"This is not going to be over very soon. We are still in the first stage of trying to cope with it," said guest speaker Vu Duc Vuong, executive director of San Francisco's Center for Southeast Asian Refugee Resettlement.

"We want to tell the (Stockton) children, though they may be only 6 years old, that they matter as people," he said.

Fremont High junior Duy Nguyen said his club held a meeting at school that was attended by Asian and non-Asian students.

"I know people who are putting their heart and soul into this (fund-raising)," he said.

The group's first activity will be a bowlathon, scheduled for Feb. 20 at the Albany Bowl. More than 100 students are expected to attend, said Steve Hamai, a counselor from the Berkeley Asian Youth Center.

The discussion, while mostly focusing on fund raising, also generated some debate.

Fremont senior Vi Tri Huynh wanted to know if raising money is really useful.

"How does this kind of fund raising keep this hatred from happening again?" he asked.

Responded Hamai, "By coming together, we make a common bond. We can accomplish something together."

Skyline High student body president Wayland Shiu said some students at his school are reluctant to get involved in the group's activities. They view it as appealing only to Asian students, he said.

"It's seems like we're isolating ourselves," said Shiu.

Huynh disagreed, saying, "We open up the door to anyone. Student of all races are welcome. Many support this.

"But we can't make them come."

Widener, local politicoes form 'transition committee'

Bay City News

Newly-appointed Alameda County Supervisor Warren Widener formed a transition committee of more than 50 elected officials and community leaders to advise him on issues crucial to his district.

At a news conference in his office Monday, Widener said the purpose of the committee is to "reach out to the diverse communities in the Fifth District and give them an opportunity to express what they perceive to be the most important issues and how to go about solving problems."

Widener said he would have appointed such an advisory committee no matter what the circumstances were of his getting the job, but he said that because of the "divisiveness" of the selection process the committee "becomes even more important."

The four other Alameda County supervisors last week appointed Widener to fill the first two years of former Supervisor John George's four-year term. George, who was reelected to a fourth term last November, died of a heart attack in December.

In June 1990 an election will be held to pick someone to fill the last two years of George's term.

Fourteen people wrote letters to the Board of Supervisors asking to be appointed to the post.

The Fifth District includes Albany, Berkeley, West Oakland and Emeryville.

Keith Carson, an aide to Congressman Ron Dellums (D-Oakland), claimed he had more support from George's progressive constituency than did Widener, a moderate who was mayor of Berkeley for eight years until the more liberal Gus Newport defeated him in 1979.

After the supervisors appointed Widener, Carson immediately announced he would run in the 1990 election.

Widener appointed Paul Cobb, another of the top contenders for the post, to the transition committee, but he did not name Carson to the list.

Committee chairman will be Bishop Roy Nichols of the United Methodist Church of Berkeley. Alana Coleman, who managed George's campaign in 1988, will be vice chairwoman.

Among the public officials on the committee are Albany Mayor Ed McManus; Oakland Mayor Lionel Wilson; State Sen. Nick Petris (D-Oakland); State Assemblyman Elihu Harris (D-Oakland); Emeryville Mayor Ken Bukowski; Oakland School Board President Sheila Jordan; and three members of the Berkeley City Council.

Widener said the committee will provide "input and involvement" in helping prioritize items. But, he said, "In the final analysis, I'm the final vote."

Officials try to unsnarl local traffic

Virtually all major Bay Area public transportation agencies have banded together to promote the use of public transportation in February as a means of reducing traffic congestion on freeways.

Linking the Transbay Terminal's 50th anniversary this month with the start-up of the "Beat the Back-Up" campaign, officials from the transit agencies, along with representatives of local governments and the news media, turned out in full force recently to declare February public transportation month.

The campaign sponsored by KPIX-TV and KCBS-Radio is aimed at changing commuters' attitudes on publc transportation.

The month-long promotion will use prizes and trip giveaways to entice commuters away from their cars and onto buses, trains and ferries.

Twenty-five passes that will allow the rider passage on nearly any regional transit line for a full year will be given away in a KPIX contest. A round trip cruise to Alaska and a ski trip also will be offered as bait to get skeptical commuters to participate in the campaign.

A large portion of the Bay Area's general population, polled at 37 percent, lists traffic and transportation problems as the region's No. 1 concern.

According to campaign organizers, Feb. 28 has been designated as "Beat the Back-Up Day," when all commuters are urged either to carpool or hop on public transportation.

KPIX General Manager Carolyn Wean compared the event to the Great American Smokeout Day.

"If we can change behaviors — see results — for just one day, perhaps we can effect long-term regional changes in our approach to the transportation problems," she said.

Al Aramburu, a member of ABAG, said, "The riders have to undergo some serious behavior modifications or else we're just going to be whistling in the dark on this."

Construction of the Transbay Terminal at First and Mission streets was finished in 1939, about two years after the first vehicles traveled across the Oakland Bay Bridge span.

At that time, the terminal also marked the end of the line for rail service, mainly the Key System that operated out of the East Bay.

As the traveling population's enthusiasm for bridge travel grew, the demand for fast service decreased until the Key System was completely shut down in 1958.

Unpopular, unhealthy

Why smoking is so tough to quit

C. Everett Koop, the surgeon general of the United States, said it's harder to stop smoking than to give up heroin and millions of people who have quit since a negative national report on the habit was first issued might agree.

"I think the fact that people are still trying to quit some 25 years after the issuance of this first report ... shows that the knowledge alone is not enough to make it easy for most people to stop smoking," said Helen Jones, communications director at the American Cancer Society in San Francisco.

Sometimes accompanied by disrupted sleep patterns, irritability, anger, headaches or constipation, would-be non-smokers attempt to stop a habit that is becoming as unpopular as it is unhealthy, only to backslide again and again. Of small comfort to these people is the knowledge that it is physiologically addicting, as well as habit-forming.

"It has only been in the last few years that the scientific community has talked about a physiological addiction," Jones said. "The cells in your body really know that this chemical is missing, and they start telling all of your nerves, 'I want a cigarette.'"

Cigarette smoking is a habit. If someone smokes a pack a day, that's 200 puffs a day, or 1,400 a week.

"It becomes an automatic reaction," said Barbara Newman, project director of Stanford University's Stop-Smoking Program, a research study examining how to help people stop the habit.

Cigarettes with coffee, cigarettes with alcohol, cigarettes after sex.

"There are a lot of things involved," Newman said. "The important thing to keep in mind is that people do differ in their reactions when they stop smoking."

But, she said, "Lots of people do stop smoking. And they survive,"

Jones agreed.

"Nobody was ever born knowing how to smoke a cigarette. You have to learn how to stop."

She said unsuccessful attempts to quit should not be considered failures.

"People who eventually succeeded learned something each time they tried to quit," she said. "Most people who smoke want to stop. Nine out of 10 say they want to quit, but there is no magic pill."

Newman said preliminary results of her research, which has monitored the success and failure of 1,226 Bay Area residents, indicate that treating the physiological aspects — the craving — of smoking is more successful than trying to modify a person's habits. Although the program is still in its final phases, the preliminary results were published in the Journal of the American Medical Association in September.

A less successful approach was to attempt to modify habits. Part of the group was given written material designed to help them cope with various aspects of their smoking habit associated with such other activities as watching television, controlling weight and drinking coffee.

Newman said it deals with how to cope with stress and boredom and how to face the morning.

Jones advised people in the withdrawal phase to drink a lot of water or chew on cinnamon sticks or gum. For people concerned with weight, she said, substitute celery sticks for doughnuts.

Newman said adverse symptoms disappear in a week or two, although they "may recur from time to time."

"Basically, our approach is that we like to think they are signals that your body is getting better from its long exposure to nicotine," she said.

Of the 50 million smokers in the United States, Jones estimates that almost half try to quit each year.

She said the number of U.S. smokers has been steadily declining since the surgeon general's report and the number of teen-age smokers has declined.

Local insurance company offers special incentive

The head of a Novato life insurance company says response has been good to an offer made this fall to insure smokers at non-smoker rates — providing they get over their deadly habit within three years.

John Regan, the president and chief executive officer of General Services Life Insurance Co., says the October offer is already credited with bringing in 1,000 more policies than usual throughout the United States.

He said his firm's unique Incentive Whole Life policy gives people credit for the act that they are trying to quit and the incentive is sizeable: ranging from 50 percent to 80 percent.

For example, he says a 55-year-old smoker who buys a $100,000 life-insurance policy would pay more than $3,500 with most mainstream companies.

Regan says that person could buy Whole Life Incentive for $1,100 a year.

If the insured person is still smoking after three years, he said either the price of the policy would go up or the amount of coverage be reduced.

"Basically, our feeling is most adults who smoke want to quit," he said.

But Regan, who is 45 and smoked for 20 years before he kicked the habit, said he knows how hard that is.

assured the audience. "An amalgamation will probably be the end product."

Nevertheless residents spoke out strongly in favor of the first two alternatives.

"I prefer the conservation approach," Dario Meniketti said. "It provides for greater quality of life and isn't that the ideal?

While leaning strongly in favor of limiting growth, many regarded the plan's restrictions on secondary units and second-story additions as too stringent.

Meniketti and former City Councilmember Ruth Ganong said restrictions are not necessary for secondary units as long as they comply with zoning law.

Lisa Heschong stressed that adequate allowances for second-story additions be made in order for families to continue to live comfortably in Albany.

Although no member of the school district was present, long time resident Ken Miller said Albany needs to maintain quality schools in the face of a widening student-teacher ratio.

"The more density we have, the more children there are, and the poorer our education will be if we can't increase the number of teachers," he said.

Miller also suggested that provisions be made for schools to acquire more property to handle any increase in the number of school children.

"In all the proposals," he said, "there are no provisions made for education."

Commenting on the alternatives promoting increased development, Jim Cleveland warned the audience that "illusory growth" could be the outcome.

"You have to look at revenue versus expenditure," he explained. "San Francisco has more revenue but their financial situation is not good. Look at their deficit."

Included in each proposal is a possible scenario for future waterfront development, ranging from an Eastshore Park under the conservation plan to the large "Village Hub High" development under the commercial alternative.

Elizabeth Baker of the Waterfront Committee and Ann Berry of the Planning Commission want to keep the waterfront issue separate.

"We need stronger land use plans and the waterfront should not be driving it," said Baker. "It will become a driving force."

Planning Director Claudia Cappio later said the controversial waterfront proposals probably will be dropped from the general plan discussion.

"I really took those comments to heart," she said. "I think for the purpose of the general plan, we'll take the racetrack as the existing condition in all of the alternatives."

Cappio stressed the importance of an adequate and legal general plan for a city.

"It's basically the guiding principles of development and it has the force of law. If something comes into the city that's inconsistent with the general plan, there's an amendment required."

Cappio cited an example from last year when a group of doctors wanted to use the Albany Hospital as a private medical facility.

"That required that the zoning law and the general plan be amended because the current policy in our general plan is that there be no new offices on Marin Avenue."

Based on the comments from the meeting, a policy direction report will be published by Feb. 15. A third public meeting to review and discuss the report will be held March 1.

Bob Hansen, zoning commissioner for the Kensington Improvement Club, spoke at the meeting in favor of Thal.

The Improvement Club, privately owned and operated, acts as a planning commission for the unincorporated Kensington.

"Normally I appear to support objections (to building plans)," Hansen said.

"But we felt at this time we should step forward in support of this project."

Hansen said the Improvement Club determined that Thal's would not bring any more into the area.

Mulligan said he is appointed with Supervisor Pe and won't vote for him in the election.

"He's not representing residents."

Police Report

Kensington kid threatens another over the phone

The following is a summary of incidents and crimes that occurred in Kensington over the past week, according to police reports.

Bad connections

● The Youth Hut received two "suspicious" phone calls. Police checked the calls Feb. 3.

● Albany police received a 911 call from Windsor Avenue in Kensington Feb. 1. The caller was asking for her doctor. She was trying to get her doctor's number from 411, but misdialed.

● On Feb. 5, a Kingston Road child reported receiving threatening phone calls from another child.

Unwelcome visitors

● A Franciscan Way woman reported Feb. 3 that someone was throwing pebbles at her window and calling on the phone and hanging up without speaking.

● A Sunset Drive woman reported that someone was knocking at her front and back doors Feb. 1. Police checked, but the suspect was gone when they arrived.

● A Franciscan Way man reported Feb. 5 that someone had been tampering with his car while it was parked in his carport. Nothing was taken.

Arrest

● A Rodeo man was arrested Feb. 1 for driving under the influence of alcohol. He was taken to the Martinez jail.

Nervous father

● A Cowper Avenue man reported Feb. 2 that the babysitter had not returned with his daughter. An officer found the babysitter and advised her to go home.

Waking the neighbors

● A resident reported an argument between three people on Berkeley Park Boulevard Feb. 5. Officers arrived, found one of them drunk, and convinced him to stay the night at a friend's house.

● An Arlington Avenue woman reported hearing three loud explosions in front of her house Feb. 5. Officers were unable to determine the source of the noise.

Hot shower

● The steam from a shower activated a fire alarm on Marguerita Road Feb. 2.

She said she was crazy, had committed murder and had tough friends who could "take care of business," the tenant told police.

The woman's husband told the tenant and his roommates that they could stay and that divorce was probable.

Shy dog angers homeowner

● A Masonic Avenue man reported a stray dog under his house. He told police if someone doesn't get rid of it, he may shoot it. According to a termite worker, the dog has been under the house for a few days and won't come out.

Shoplifting

● Two shoplifters made away with a shopping cart full of groceries from Safeway Feb. 2. According to witnesses, a woman in her 30s distracted the clerk while her 7- or 8-year-old companion loaded the groceries into a waiting car.

Woman catches burglar in closet

● A Taft Street woman caught a man hiding in her closet Feb. 2 and chased him down the street until police apprehended him.

The would-be burglar is a 36-year-old parolee from Soledad prison released last October. He is also accused of breaking into another home earlier that day and stealing quarters and a watch.

Royal Cafe celebration

More than 150 regular customers of the Royal Cafe celebrated the cafe's grand opening for dinners last week.

Co-owners Majid Mahani and Javad Parsa invited customers who have patronized their cafe for breakfasts and lunches.

Dinner service offers a menu including a freshly ground half-pound hamburger or a dinner menu of fresh fish, fried chicken, barbecued back ribs or steak.

Mahajani and Parsa own property adjacent to the cafe and plan to expand the restaurant, open a bakery or a family style room and recreation area and perhaps a pizza parlor.

New members

Jim Weathersbee and Cindy Lee are partners in J.W. Real Estate Loans, 1223 Solano Ave. Their application with their company is good for any of the 70 lenders that they are approved with instead of applying with individual loan institutions.

Weathersbee promises the best loan program available while providing the best service to obtain the lowest rates.

Looking over mesquite for all meal preparation at the Mediterranean Gardens, 809 San Pablo Ave., makes the dinners stand out from others.

Owner Youssef Souki with his family operates the restaurant, serving everything fresh daily. His menu consists of Lebanese and Middle Eastern style food with assorted American dishes.

The restaurant opened six and a half years ago with Waheeb Habeeb as assistant chef. Since their dinner trade has increased daily, seating space is often not large enough to accommodate their clientele.

Race day winners

Winners of last Saturday's Albany Day at the Races drawing were E. Crawford, his and her Seiko watches; Haygood and Associates, the compact disc player; May Olson, Fitlab membership; Mike Mendez, Forty Niner jacket; Berkeley Board of Realtors, $100 savings bond from Bank of America; Tom Mullen, $100 savings bond from Sumitomo Bank; Jack and Pat Rosano, $100 bond from the Mechanics Bank.

Other winners were Karen Rosmarin, trip to Reno; Giovanni's Haircutting, four dinners at the Casablanca; John Friggin, three floral arrangements; John Benson, four dinners at the Royal Cafe; John Williams, two Albany sweatshirts; Alireza Asiaii and Minh Luong, two Albany tee shirts.

The chamber of commerce and 17 other non-profit organizations participating in the Albany Day at the Races fund raiser appreciates Golden Gate Fields' generosity in making it possible for them to generate funds.

Attending Royal Cafe's dinner opening were (from left) Laura Katz, owners Majid Mahani and Javad Parsa, and Anita Levitch. Katz and Levitch eat at the pink palace every Sunday.

County considers hygiene rating system for diners

The Contra Costa County Board of Supervisors recently gave provisional approval to a restaurant hygiene rating system being developed by county environmental health administrators.

The proposed system would require the county's approximately 1,870 restaurants to post a card showing the grade given them by county health inspectors for their level of compliance with regulations governing food preparation, storage and cleanliness.

Supervisors emphasized that the rating would have nothing to do with the quality of the food or service at restaurants. It also directed the county's legal counsel to look into the possibility that the county could be sued for libel as a result of the rating system.

The board authorized environmental health staff to work out the details of the proposed rating plan and retun to the superivsors within 60 days for final approval of the system.

LITA gets big Buscaglia hug

EL CERRITO -- LITA (Love Is The Answer) of Contra Costa, an organization that matches volunteers as one-to-one friends with lonely people in nursing homes, announced that it has received a grant of $1,500 from The Felice Foundation, founded by Dr. Leo Buscaglia, the love doctor. The funds will go toward the LITA-sponsored Intergenerational Program that brings middle school students to visit residents of nursing homes.

LITA is currently developing a model program at St. John the Baptist Catholic School in El Cerrito for students in 6th, 7th and 8th grades. LITA has just begun its annual Friends of LITA fundraising campaign and hopes to raise an additional $20,000 to expand the intergenerational program to other schools, and help fund the adults visiting program.

At St. John a group of 13 students travel to Richmond's Hallmark Nursing Center twice a month where they visit and do art projects with the residents. LITA also conducts student training sessions at the school site in disability and elder awareness, communication skills and cultural myths about aging.

For further information call LITA at 527-2055.

Gauchos remain undefeated after win over De La Salle

By Leon McFadden

EL CERRITO — The ball continues to bounce the right way for the El Cerrito High School boys basketball team, which emerged with a nail biting 53-52 win Tuesday over De La Salle.

The final second win leaves the Gauchos undefeated in the Bay Valley Athletic League at 11-0. The Spartans, formerly tied with Berkeley for second, drop to 8-3.

The Gauchos opened the game as if they would run away with it, taking a 22-10 lead entering the second quarter. By halftime, though, the difference was down to 33-30.

With just over half a minute to play, the Gauchos had assumed a 53-49 lead on a pair of baskets by Quentin Youngblood and a pair of free throws by Faraji Green.

The Spartans quickly came back with three points to close the gap to 53-52.

Some success at the free throw line might have wrapped things up for El Cerrito. But Ed Knight missed the first shot in a one-and-one situation. Youngblood, who was fouled when he got the rebound on Knight's miss, did the same.

That gave DLS the ball and the chance to win with just under 10 seconds to play. The Spartans missed a long desperation shot and a follow shot by Chris McClaughry wouldn't drop.

El Cerrito got the rebound, the buzzer sounded and the Gauchos came away with a win.

Youngblood finished with 21 points and James French scored 16. The Spartans' John Wagner scored a game-high 22 and McClaughry added 17.

Things went a little smoother for the Gauchos in wins over Antioch and Pinole Valley.

El Cerrito scored a 56-48 win at Antioch Jan. 31, behind a 28-point performance by Youngblood. Much of the difference came at the free throw line, where the Gauchos made 14 of 16.

Tony McCormick led the Panthers with 18 points.

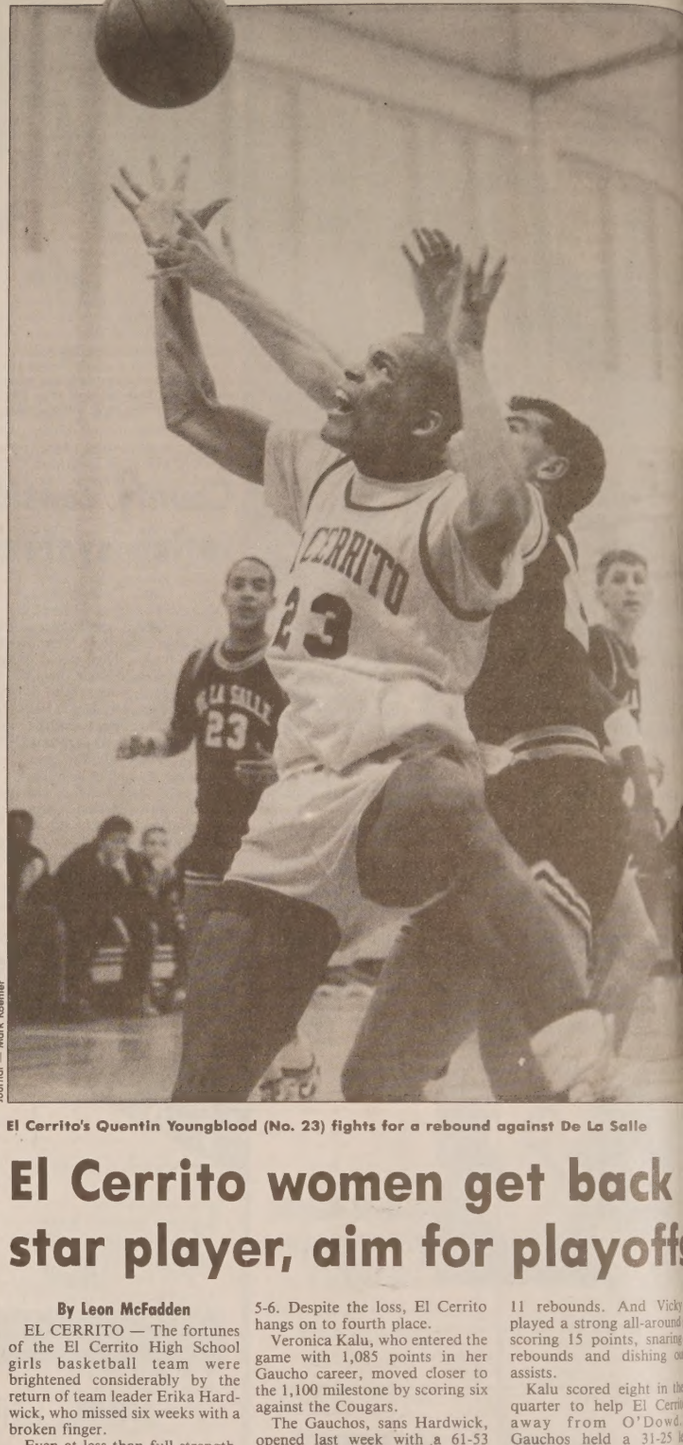

On Feb. 3, the Gauchos went to Pinole Valley and posted a 69-53 victory.

Youngblood scored 22 against Pinole, French had 16 and Lossie Mitchell chipped in 15 points, including 12 in the second quarter. French connected on three 3-point field goals and Mitchell downed a pair from long range.

After taking a 39-29 lead by halftime, the Gauchos broke open the game by outscoring the Spartans 18-8 in the third quarter.

. El Cerrito, 21-2 overall, goes to Pittsburg Friday, then returns home to face Berkeley Feb. 14. The Yellowjackets are currently second in the BVAL at 9-2.

The Gauchos are ranked No. 5 in the East Bay.

El Cerrito women get back star player, aim for playoff

By Leon McFadden

EL CERRITO — The fortunes of the El Cerrito High School girls basketball team were brightened considerably by the return of team leader Erika Hardwick, who missed six weeks with a broken finger.

Even at less than full strength, Hardwick is a vital addition to an El Cerrito team that is clinging to a shot at one of the final Bay Valley Athletic League playoff berths.

Like a B-movie plot where the star player comes back in time for the big game, Hardwick was back in the lineup in time for the Gauchos' game at first-place Carondelet.

"I hope it's got a happy ending," said Gaucho Coach Bill Hardin on the eve of the Carondelet match.

"Erika's about 80 percent right now, I'd say. She's further along than I thought she'd be."

Even though a Hardwick at 80 percent is still better than most girls players, Hardin was uncertain whether her return would make the difference against the talented Cougars, who were 10-0 in the BVAL going into Tuesday's game.

"I'd just as soon we were playing next Tuesday," he said. "Erika's not going to play enough that it's going to be a big factor. She gets tired out there."

He added that her absence had actually improved the team because the players had to depend on themselves rather than relying on Hardwick.

Hardwick did turn out to be a big factor Tuesday night, but not big enough as the Gauchos fell to the Cougars 59-49.

In fact, El Cerrito fell right back to its old ways, with Hardwick being the only Gaucho to reach double figures (28 points).

Foul trouble sent Hardwick, who finished with 12 rebounds, to the bench in the third quarter with El Cerrito still close at 32-29.

Carondelet pulled away from there, dropping the Gauchos to 5-6. Despite the loss, El Cerrito hangs on to fourth place.

Veronica Kalu, who entered the game with 1,085 points in her Gaucho career, moved closer to the 1,100 milestone by scoring six against the Cougars.

The Gauchos, sans Hardwick, opened last week with a 61-53 home loss to Antioch Jan. 31 that dropped their Bay Valley Athletic League record to 4-5. Antioch, second in the BVAL, improved to 8-1.

A sluggish start left El Cerrito trailing 17-10 after one quarter and 33-24 at the half.

Despite closing the gap to 45-41 going into the final quarter, the Gauchos were unable to overtake the Panthers.

Ugochi Nwamuo, with 16 points, was high-scorer for El Cerrito. Veronica Kalu scored 13 for the Gauchos and Vicky Kalu added 11.

Vanessa Selden scored a game-high 21 points and teammate Stacey Johnson had 12 for Antioch.

Hardwick made her return debut in El Cerrito's home game with Pinole Valley Feb. 3, though her presence hardly mattered as the Gauchos posted a 59-24 win over the outmanned Spartans.

The win evened the Gauchos' league mark at 5-5, while Pinole dropped to 0-10.

Veronica Kalu had 11 points and 14 rebounds and Antonia Jackson had 12 points and seven assists for El Cerrito.

Although she got in little more than one quarter of playing time, Hardwick scored 14 points, enabling her to pass the 1,000 point milestone as a Gaucho.

On Feb. 4 El Cerrito hosted a non-league match against Bishop O'Dowd, then ranked 15th in the East Bay.

Playing only about half the game against the Dragons, Hardwick scored 16 points and pulled down 11 rebounds as the Gauchos notched a 61-52 victory.

Nwamuo posted similar numbers, scoring 15 and grabbing 11 rebounds. And Vicky played a strong all-around scoring 15 points, snaring rebounds and dishing o assists.

Kalu scored eight in the quarter to help El Cerr away from O'Dowd. Gauchos held a 31-25 l halftime.

Much of what Hardw complished in the two ga done on talent alone, said. In addition to not practiced for six weeks, He has two of the fingers shooting hand taped toge

"Her shooting's not gre he said. "She missed a lo shots (in her first two back)."

Starting in 1979 on Lakeshore Avenue, Lundgren has been able to create through her store a unique and always fashion-forward image. "At A Step Forward we extend the Joan and David philosophy of sophisticated classical footwear combined with superb craftsmanship into our retail transactions." Commented Lundgren, "We want to provide our clients with fashion and function at a price point that is below the existing retail."

In addition to her exclusive West Coast off-price arrangement, Lundgren has included a unique marketing idea in her store. Upstairs, sizes run from 5 to 7 and downstairs, from 7½ to 10 with a variety of colors available.

Also available and on display in the store are Joan and David belts and handbags. The wide variety of exotic leathers and colors complement the shoes and boots throughout the store.

Just up the street from A Step Forward is a new and exciting fashion accessory store. For U Too is Ulla Lundgren's latest vision. Opening this week, For U Too is carrying classic handbags in Colombian leathers and other exotic skins. The counters and the walls are filled with everything from scarves and hosiery to silver jewelry and leather jackets. I will be writing about new developments and the planned Grand Opening in the weeks to come.

A Step Forward is located at 3319 Lakeshore Ave. in Oakland. It's open seven days a week. Hours are Monday through Wednesday 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Thursday and Friday 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., Saturday 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Sunday noon to 5 p.m. The phone number is 835-4300.

For U Too is located at 3281 Lakeshore Ave., in Oakland and has the same hours as above.

Caruso keglers capture second third segment in Albany league

ALBANY — The Al Caruso Insurance team, composed of Robert McCrainey, Charles Barnes, Robert Bickford, Lawrence Komo, John Taylor and Chandler Buffin, are the winners of the second third segment of Albany Bowl's 930 Scratch Classic League.

While the Caruso keglers had previously captured the first third rather handily, it was a different story this go-round as they barely held on to prevail by a slim one-half point margin over Luau Island Restaurant after dropping a 16½-8½ decision to the Luau gang in the position round finale.

In other matches Kent's Travel and Tour edged Makaso Landscaping 13-12, Willis Construction (Rich St. Germain 222-646) defeated Dean Asami Pro Shop (Bob Blank, Jr., 259-645 and Sean Weatherton 207-616) 15-10, ACA (Larry Barnes 221-638) bested Estes Refrigeration (Steve Brewer 218-604) 15-10 and O & R Vending (Nick Mamaril 233-645) took the measure of A & L Bowling Supply 17-8.

Final standings for the second third: Al Caruso 159½, Luau Island 159, Kent's 148½, Nakaso 145½, Willis 145, ACA 138½, Dean Asami 135½, Estes 134, O & R 133, A & L 68½.

Delcia Young, who is enjoying a sensational season, again led the women's hit parade in spite of a slow start. Young struggled to a 164 her first game but then added 236-229 for a sparkling 629 series. Other noteworthy efforts included Maru Garrido 221-569, Nan Hara 548, Linda James 546, Ouida Davis 233-544 and Asta Dingman 540.

Kingsley Berndt easily topped the seniors when he put together a big 201-175-237-613 and Ruben Ortiz' 222-597 was high for the juniors. Demond Ware, 15, one of Albany's up and coming teenagers, narrowly missed a perfect game in a practice session when he followed a spare with 11 straight strikes for a 290.

Leading individual scores in other leagues were: 880 Commercial, Dwight Hammons 266-656, Tyrome Jackson 233-626 and Warner Freeman 233-600; Reno Invitational, Rick Urone 266-626 and Steve Wichelmann 220-599; Jolly Corks, Emil Blase 214-600; Graphic Arts, Scott Johnson 230-617; 700 Scratch 4's, Charles Trammell 202-602; Friday Nite Live, Woody McGee 233-596; Junior-Adults, Julio Gonzalez 221-596; Plaza Mixers, Bob Johnson, Jr. 221-596.

Albany Little League seeks sponsors

ALBANY — The Albany Little League is seeking eight new full team sponsors in order to provide organized baseball for the 125 additional youths who signed up this coming season.

There will be four new teams added to the Minor Division and four to the Senior Division, according to Robert Zweben, league president.

Sponsor fees for the minors are $100 per team, seniors, $200 per team. The 1989 season begins in early April and ends the middle of June. At that time play-offs and all star competition begin.

A full team sponsor will have his business name on the back of the uniforms and will receive a sponsor's certificate and publicity throughout the baseball season.

For those who do not wish to sponsor a full team, the league accepts donations of any denomination and extends the same publicity to each donor. All donations are tax deductible.

Contributions may be mailed to Albany Little League, Inc., P.O. Box 6003, Albany 94706.

For additional information call Fern Luoma at 526-1311.

Aerobics in Kensington offered daily

KENSINGTON — Cathe Sierra offers aerobics instruction daily from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. at 396 Colusa Ave., Kensington. Classes for adults at every level as well as for pregnant and post-natal women are available.

There is also a spécial Kids in Motion class for children 4 to 7. Child care is available by reservation at most classes.

Sierra is certified by the American College of Sports Medicine. Costs range from $6 per class to $4 per class if purchased by series. The monthly unlimited pass is ordinarily $55. A try-out class is free.

For information call Karen Finch or Cathe Sierra at 526-4517.

No muddy water here, say officials

Bay Area residents' tap water is more clean and pure than state and federal health standards require, according to the California Municipal Utilities Association.

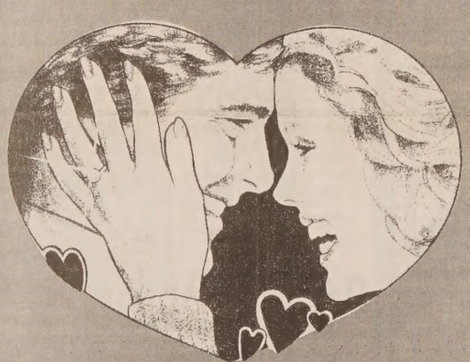

Water-borne diseases are virtually nonexistent in the public's drinking water due to effective chlorine treatment, said Jerry Jordan, the association's director.

"Water quality is constantly being improved while taking health, technological feasibility and reasonable cost for the public into consideration," said Jordan.

Chlorine has been used to treat public water since the early 1900s, according to Jordan. But it was recently discovered that chlorine combines with natural elements in the water to form trihalomethanes — a cancer-causing compound when ingested in large quantities.

Jordan said home water treatment devices filter out such impurities, but, he warned, the devices themselves can pose a health hazard.

Fine acting keeps 'Married' from getting st

By Hilda Scheib
Bay City News

Theater

When We Are Married at the American Conservatory Theater is a conscious return to a simpler time. Written by British playwright J.B. Priestley in 1938 as World War II loomed on the horizon, it is set in 1908, when England basked in prosperity and firmly believed in bourgeois, patriarchal values.

The tempest in this well-ordered teapot takes the form of a threat to respectability: three Yorkshire couples, gathered together to celebrate their joint 25th wedding, learn that their marriage was performed by an unauthorized minister.

This revelation upsets the well-established hierarchy on which the Edwardian household is based.

First, the three husbands — all movers and shakers in their church — cannot dismiss the church organist from down South, whom they accuse of uppity ways and suspect of romantic carryings-on, because he is the keeper of their shameful secret.

Even worse, the class distinctions between the three couples — all well-heeled and models of respectability — and their employees rapidly dim, as the celebrants' working class origins peek through their bourgeois veneers.

Left by the wayside are the swipes at the charwoman's laziness and poor manners, as she too knows that the Helliwells, Parkers and Soppitts are not nearly as upstanding as they seem.

In chronicling the changes wrought by this bombshell, Priestley always keeps his comedy light.

The San Francisco production, which opened Feb. 1 under the direction of Edward Hastings, makes excellent use of several outstanding performances to avoid the dry spots in an at times less-than-compelling play.

While the twists and turns of When We Are Married threaten to get repetitive, there are always the superb performances of Randall Duk Kim and Ruth Kobart, as the henpecked Henry Soppitt and his formidable wife, Clara, to keep one laughing.

The two force a classic husband and wife pair, with Kim's Herbert a Kewpie doll-shaped figure of non-assertion in a world of pushers.

The change in Herbert following the revelation is marvelous, as Kim recycles the lawyer's nervous mannerisms into marks of his new-found strength.

And the alteration in Herbert is mirrored in Clara. Kobart as first seen is a master of the withering aside, her pointed remarks seemingly capable of deflating Herbert in full audience view. But after she learns that their marriage was improper, she struggles to regain respectability and learns to cede dominance to her husband.

Kobart, too, makes the Clara's speech pa recognizable in new and h shape after her reform a manages, in one split seco convey the pleasure she f abdicating her thro imperiousness.

Lulled into a dream-like by liquor and the poetry tions of a young chamb (expertly performed by AC dent Mollie Stickney) photographer awakes to Kobart in the place of the faced ingenue.

There also are excellent mances by Joy Carlin as loving Annie Parker, stu joyless marriage, and Lawder, whose irreverent speaking Mrs. Northrup re rug on the studied, stuffy of the Yorkshire household.

When We Are Marri continue through Mar ACT's Geary Theater, 415 St., San Francisco.

Maserati TC coupe took time, and it's worth it

By David Fetherston
Auto Editor

As the old song goes, "It's been a long time comin'," and Chrysler's new Maserati TC coupe has been a long time comin'. First shown in '85, it was expected to be on sale the following year but now it's finally here for the '89 model year.

The TC has been the pet project of Chrysler's chairman, Lee A. Iacocca. He pressed hard to have the TC arrive on the market without bugs. The merging of American ideas and Italian construction methods, while trying to achieve the required quality level, took more time than Detroit planned.

The TC's tight body lines show strong Pentastar genes with a body styling package similar to the popular LeBaron coupe and convertible. When lined up against the LeBarons, the TC shows that it has its own well styled lines on a wheelbase seven inches shorter than the LeBarons.

The TC is intended to be a low volume car. Its buyers will come from less that 1 percent of the market. Chrysler, as I see it, positioned the TC to have a wide appeal to luxury upscale car buyers but is also hopeful that the TC will bring traffic into the showroom.

Chrysler's Italian connection

Iacocca and Italy have strong family connections. He is the son of an Italian immigrant family. He was also one of the forces that brought the hot "de Tomaso Pantera" into the showrooms at Ford dealerships across the country back in the early '70s.

Now his old connections are paying dividends again. He connected up with de Tomaso; then Chrysler purchased five percent interest in Maserati, which automatically formed an association to build and develop new products. The TC is basically the first product of that relationship.

Trying to keep costs within reason necessitated the use of some production tooling from Chrysler. This parts pooling finally added up to using a modified K-car floor plan with an assembly of outside suppliers for the specialist parts.

The bodies are fabricated by Maserati at their Milan plant where they normally build Innocentis for the European market. Maserati stamps out the all-steel bodies and produces a snappy little hardtop which comes standard with all cars.

The porthole in the hard top was one of Iacocca's touches and as such leaves all viewers divided as to its merits about 50/50. A folding top also comes standard and easily drops into a recess behind the passenger compartment while leaving the rear luggage space free and clear.

Several domestic magazine stories on the TC have ragged it for its luxury ride and sporting pretensions. It's interesting to note that the TC was not designed to be an all-out sports car but rather a compact luxury touring car for two.

Power-hungry drivers satisfied

Using a Chrysler based power train even for the twin cam, four valve turbo motor, Maserati has carefully concocted a motor that integrates its power curve with the type of driving expected from its owners. The Maserati twin cam is available as a manual at present. Should you desire an automatic, then get the Chrysler 2.2 liter turbo four from the K-car line.

The Maserati motor pumps out a gutsy 200 horsepower over 220 foot pounds of torque. Both figures mean power. The block and crank are from Chrysler and the head is from Maserati but cast in England by Cosworth. Internals include Mahle forged pistons, and the turbo for the 16 valve is a special IHI RHB 52 attached to a specially tuned header exhaust system.

The manual version is punchy. Off the line, eight seconds will take you to 60 mph and it tops out around the mid-130 mph mark. The auto version is slower, cutting a 0 to 60 mph time of around 11 seconds with a top speed about 10 mph slower than the manual.

The front drive system is well refined, producing negligible torque steer from the beefy 200 horse motor. Slam the throttle to the floor and the TC just carts off the line straight and clean as you please.

TC heck of a car

I drove the TC for a day in and around the high desert mountains behind Palm Springs and across the freeway for several hundred miles. The more I drove it the more I enjoyed it, and after my day behind the wheel I have to say that the TC which has arrived on the market is not the car I expected it would be — it's a heck of a lot better.

Route 243 to Idyllwild across the San Jacinto Mountains behind Palm Springs is one of the most scenic and challenging pieces of road in California. Its twists and hairpin turns climb up in two lanes to nearly 5,000 feet from the desert floor, providing just the right place to run a new vehicle through its paces.

Up the mountain I pressed the TC along just as hard as I liked. It dances around a little, over some corner surface variations, but still kept all four corners firmly on the ground with the Maserati motor chuffing out its horses with only a little complaint at higher rpm.

It points well, and like all front drives eventually starts pushing at the limit. The suspension uses a control arm located up front on a Fichtel and Sachs coil spring strut, tied down with a tuned sway-bar.

The rear suspension is very Chrysler, with two trailing arms locating a rigid rear axle which is sprung on coil springs and gas shocks. A tuned sway-bar also helps tie down the rear. Braking is handled with four wheel discs and a Teves anti-lock system which all works just fine, hauling the 3100 pound TC down to well-defined stops.

Major changes to hit work force by year 2000

According to the U.S. Department of Labor's "Workforce 2000" report:

- Polaroid uses a voucher system in eight states to subsidize day care for employees earning less than $30,000. Campbell Soup offers employees day care at 50 percent off.
- Aetna operates a training institute in Hartford, Conn. that offers courses from basic skills to advanced education for 20,000 workers a year.
- More than 80 percent of new employees — not only new entrants into the work force — will be minorities, women and immigrants.
- There will be two million fewer workers aged 16 to 24, while the number between 35 and 54 will increase by 25 million.
- Half the new jobs created over the next 20 years will require some education beyond high school, a third of them a college degree.

Major corporations are moving on half a dozen fronts to adjust and adapt to the coming realities. Their pilot programs will be widely copied. A rundown:

- IBM's new "flexibility" program offers employees unpaid leaves of up to three years to care for a new baby or an elderly parent, with assured fringe benefits during the leave and a job when the leave is up.
- Honeywell is testing a "mother's shift" at a Massachusetts plant. Women's working shift coincides with school hours.

Reader offers special mementoes

"I was reading your column about Elizabeth Harman," the elderly man's voice on the telephone said. "And I wondered if she might be interested in some things I have left by my late wife, Georgia." Then the story poured out of him.

Robert Hulsey's wife, Georgia, was mad about sewing — about fabrics and all the accouterments that go with the fashioning of clothing.

Her hobby and her joy was to attend sales of fabrics. When manufacturers held fabric sales she would buy yards and yards of various fabrics in all patterns and colors.

She did not stop at fabrics alone. At special sales she would purchase spools of thread, again of every possible color, and buttons in all sizes and shapes.

Hulsey said her buttons were all of very interesting materials — very few were plastic. Usually they were "the old fashioned kind."

The things that went into the construction of clothing interested her also. She had a sewing machine with every conceivable gadget on it. "It can do everything," Hulsey said.

There wasn't anything that came out that she didn't acquire.

"Georgia," he would ask, "What are you going to do with all of this stuff?" She would answer dreamily, "When I retire I am going to start making clothes for people." She talked about designing the clothing herself using the tremendous store of fabrics and buttons she had amassed.

Tragically, Georgia died before she could fulfill her dream.

"What am I going to do with all of this stuff?" Robert asked. "I have given a lot of it to people in her church but they can only use so much."

So it was that, having read about designer and merchant Elizabeth Harman, it occurred to him that she might be able to make use of these things that Georgia had so lovingly gathered in search of a dream that died with her.

Robert Hulsey said he also will welcome inquiries from other interested people. He lives on Plymouth St. in the Richmond Annex. We are happy to pass the word for this very kind and saddened gentlemen.

All of Us show

There is a new art gallery in our area. Up to now the only art gallery in West Contra Costa County has been the art center in Richmond. Now, in a recently scrubbed and painted building not too far from that center, there is a gallery, carefully planned, well lighted and with simple appointments.

The new art gallery is part of the National Institute of Art and Disabilities (NIAD), in its new building at 551 23rd St. in Richmond.

In a previous column we told you about Florence and Elias Katz who, with an incredible amount of work and love, made NIAD a wonderful facility for disabled people to discover their own artistic abilities.

This couple has turned people who had "fallen between the cracks" into artists — happy, productive citizens who excitedly take part in the program and who produce amazingly beautiful work.

The current show at the NIAD art gallery is "All of Us," an exhibition of recent work by the artists and teachers of the National Institute of Art and Disabilities. Beautifully presented and framed, the exhibit is breathtaking.

People who attended the opening celebration of the new home of the institute were enthusiastic about the show. Several were purchased that e remain in the exhibit unti of the run, Feb. 28.

In addition to the gall institute has a gift shop w cludes items donated by and other interested Lovely pottery done by l tists, some ethic art wo other interesting items sale.

The institute needs vol people who will act as hostess in the art gallery shop a few hours a week.

The gallery hours are 1 to 4 p.m. daily an appointment.

For information on the about NIAD call 620-029

Thank you for the in have offered. As alway calls or letters are most w Call 525-4585 or write 55 St., No. 443, Albany 947

New stiffer penalti for cruelty to anim

The State Humane Officers of Berkeley East Bay Humane Society want to remind the public that cruelty to animals is against the law and under new California legislation, neglect, the most common form of cruelty, can incur penalties of up to $20,000. In addition, extreme neglect can be considered a felony under these laws.

Pet owners are required by law to provide adequate food, water, shelter and proper medical attention to their charges.

While the food and water needs are usually obvious, definitions of shelter are more arbitrary. Accor- ding to Humane Society shelters should be made material, have enough s the animals to turn arou and shold protect them elements.

Medical attention always be given before a has reached a crisis po appropriate vaccination check-ups given on a basis.

If it appears that an a being mistreated through contact the nearest animal service or Humane Soci information call the Humane Society at 845-7
